Get Outside

Whether it's at one of our nature reserves, a community park, or in your own backyard, there's nothing like engaging with nature at your own pace.

Audubon Society of Western Pennsylvania helps you and your family to do just that—experience the natural world on our trails, through our programs, and in our nature-play areas for children.

We have three public nature centers and reserves—Beechwood Farms Nature Reserve in Fox Chapel, Succop Nature Park in Penn Township, Butler County, and Todd Nature Reserve in Sarver. Each offers its own unique environment for hiking, learning, and connecting with our natural world.

Audubon Society of Western Pennsylvania has a total of 12 miles of trails through more than 600 tranquil acres.

Make a Difference

When you support Audubon—through attending a program, volunteering, or making a donation—you are making a difference!

Audubon's Backyard Habitat Certification Program connects you with the resources needed to make real change using native plants. We will visit create a custom plan for your property and provide you with a variety of resources to help you along the way.

Our Citizen Science programs help us to monitor the effects that these changes are bringing to our communities.

Volunteering with Audubon provides the opportunity to engage and share your passion for the natural world with other people.

Join With Us

Audubon Society of Western Pennsylvania is an independent chapter of National Audubon Society and proudly serves the seven-county region of southwestern Pennsylvania. We are a financially and legally independent organization and all membership support stays local to our communities.

We believe that birds have no borders and we work with National Audubon Society and other like-minded organizations on important issues that impact birds and other wildlife across the hemisphere.

Your support allows us to advocate for issues that are important to our region, our state, and our world.
